Solon Wants Congress To Reconvene In Fall

HATCH URGES SESSION DUE TO GREEK TROUBLES

U. S. Officials Anxiously Awaiting Developments In Balkan Area

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Sen. Carl Hatch (D) N. M., today called upon the Republican leadership to reconvene Congress early this Fall because of the world picture, particularly the situation in Greece.

Hatch's request came as United States officials anxiously awaited developments along the Greek border in anticipation of a showdown this week over Russian intentions in the Balkans.

The New Mexico senator declared:

"If Congress were on the job it would have a good psychological effect on the world. We are paid by the year. There is no reason why we should not work by the year. Congress should stand ready to meet world emergencies."

FROM NOW until the United Nations general assembly meets in New York on Sept. 15 is regarded generally as the critical time for the involved area.

Officials feel no great assurance over the situation other than that heavy shipments of aid to Greece in the form of military and transport equipment may stave off the intensification of guerrilla effort on the northern borders.

If the Communist-dominated Russian satellites along the Greek border can be persuaded from openly giving strong military aid to the Greek guerrilla forces in sufficient quantity to threaten (Continued on Page Two)

GREEKS GUARD AGAINST COUP BY COMMUNISTS

ATHENS, Aug. 25—Police and military garrisons were placed on a standing alert today against an officially feared Communist coup taking advantage of the country's temporary lack of a government.

The order was issued by War Minister George Stoulos, coincident with heightened guerrilla attacks in the north.

Premier-Designate Constantine Tsaldaris renewed his efforts to form a government to replace the cabinet toppled Saturday by the resignation of three middle-of-the-road leaders in protest over the conduct of the campaign against the guerrillas.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Our financial position is steadily improving. We have a 4 billion 700 million surplus in prospect and $2.05 cash netted from the sale of money.

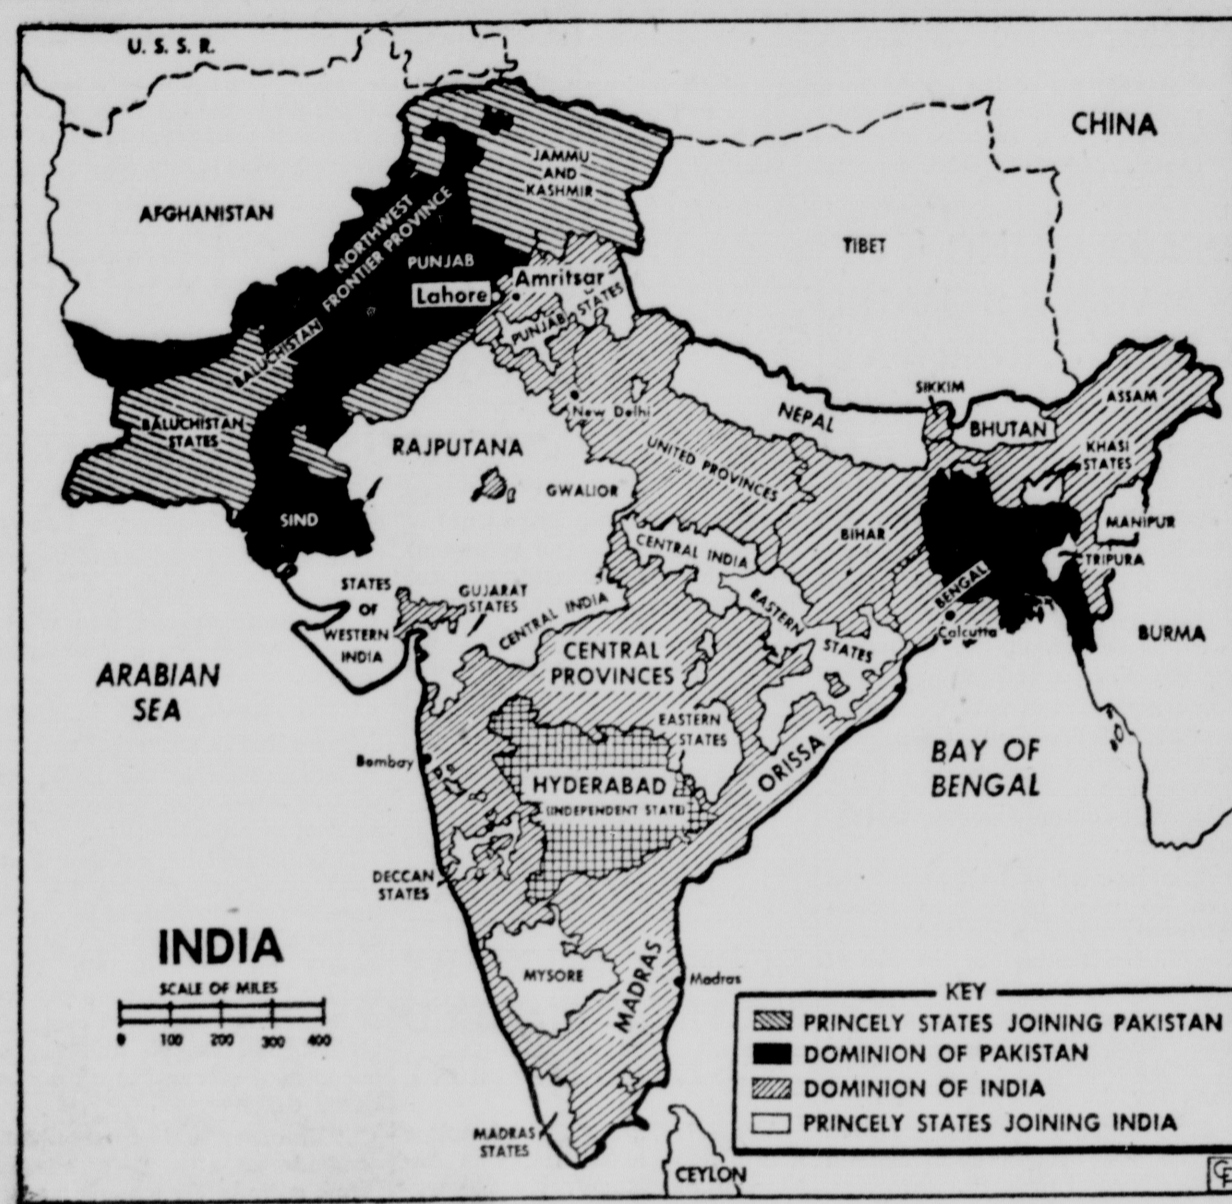

Itinerant bees deposited the honey on government land and it was sold as "unclaimed surplus property."

The bees were unaware at the time that they were laboring for Uncle Sam—any taxpayer could have done them differently.

But it's good to know that on the day September corn hit $2.63 a bushel in Chicago the attorney general declared war on price-fixing in the clutch facing field.

Food may stay a little high but replacement brake linings will soon be within the reach of every hungry consumer.

After this I near the price-fixing probe will extend to Turkish delight, monogrammed snuff boxes and possibly to pearl derby processors.

PARTITIONED COUNTRY is the new India with departure of the British because of the various princely states and current indecision of their rulers. Two main divisions of the nation are the Dominion of India (light shading) with 300,000,000 Hindus and Pakistan (dark shading) with 60,000,000 Moslems. Whereas the Hindu state covers the largest area, Pakistan is divided in two separate parts with the predominantly Moslem princely states of Jammu and Kashmir (top, center) as probable annexes in the near future. All other princely states, with the exception of Hyderabad (center), which thus far has indicated it will remain independent, are expected to join the Hindu dominion.

Russians 'Friendly' To Soldiers Held 12 Days

SEOUL, Aug. 25—Three young U. S. soldiers, held without explanation for 12 days by Russian authorities in northern Korea, related their strange experiences today after being released unharmed at the Soviet-American border in central Korea.

One of the GIs, 19-year-old John D. Hopfe, Seattle, Wash., said the Russians had given him vodka, "thinking maybe I'd get drunk." He added with a wry smile: "I didn't."

HOPFE AND T-Sgt. Tommy F. Pugsley, 19, Renton, Wash., and Pfc. Gerald F. Geffen, Port Chester, N. Y., were captured by

FORD JOINS IN PRICE BOOSTS FOR NEW AUTOS

DETROIT, Aug. 25—The Ford Motor company today joined other automotive concerns seeking to offset increased wage and material costs by raising its car prices from $20 to $97.

The boost, an average of 4.2 per cent, is effective immediately.

President Henry Ford II announced the increase explaining that "This action has been dictated by the simple necessity of keeping the company on a sound economic basis."

Ford cited increased costs in materials, wages and salaries as the largest cause of the new price tags. He added that even with the new prices the company would not be able to recover the full amount of increased costs for the remainder of 1947.

DON DAVIS BIRDS COP PRIZES AT STATE FAIR

Don Davis, North Court street, young bantam fancier, entered six birds in the black, red, old English game class in the poultry competition at the Ohio State Fair and won three firsts, two seconds and one third in the class judging conducted Sunday. ## ECUADOR CHIEF FLEES COUNTRY

Military Coup Takes Power In Nation; President Safe In Colombia

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 25—President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra of Ecuador found sanctuary in Colombia today after being deposed by a military coup for the second time in his career.

Velasco, accompanied by his Argentine-born wife and his staff, arrived by plane at Cali, in southwest Colombia, in flight from Col. Carlos Mancheno, Ecuadorian "strong man" who proclaimed himself provisional chief of state.

Members of Velasco's staff at the Hotel Alfarez in Cali said he will remain in the city for an indefinite period. They said he refused to make any statement.

Mancheno, who engineered the almost bloodless coup, declared in a communique that it was necessitated by Velasco's attempt to transfer his powers to vice president Mariano Suarez Veintimilla.

This, said Mancheno, minister of defense in Velasco's government, would have meant perpetuating the conservative party in power.

COUNCIL OF UN RACING TO GET SLATE CLEARED

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Aug. 25—The United Nations security council begins a race today to clear its decks by Friday of all reports to the general assembly and the Egyptian and Indonesian problems.

The 11-nation body, nearing the end of two months of uninterrupted morning and afternoon sessions, is tentatively planning a fifteenth day breathing pause at the end of this week to prepare for the arduous task of the general assembly, starting Sept. 16.

As the identical delegates comprise the atomic energy and the conventional arms commissions, a parallel effort got underway this morning to dispose also in time of the reports to be prepared by these two groups. Debate on Indonesia resumed at 2 p. m. EST.

EDISON'S WIDOW DIES AFTER SIX WEEKS ILLNESS

Mrs. Edison, who was 82, succumbed last night to heart failure. At her bedside when she died was the Edison's two sons, Charles, a former secretary of the Navy and one-time governor of New Jersey; Theodore, like his father a scientist, and an only daughter, Mrs. John E. Sloane.

WAR CONTRACT SETTLEMENT TO RECEIVE STUDY

House Committee Plans Early Hearings On 'Fraud And Overpayment'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Rep. Bender (R) Ohio, chairman of a house expenditures subcommittee, said today his group will open widespread hearings next month on "fraud and overpayment" in war contract settlement cases.

Bender's group will begin hearings Sept. 9 with a report by comptroller general Lindsay C. Warren on waste in contract settlements as the "starting point."

The congressman announced that the subcommittee inquiry is "definitely not interested in publicity, sensationalism or Hollywood performances" and will be "no hippodrome."

HE SAID that the general accounting office has found fraud or overpayment in 239 of the contract settlements it has examined. However, he added, the GAO has gone over only 1.5 percent of all war contract terminations.

At the same time, it was learned that the senate war investigating committee plans to cover much the same ground when it resumes hearings about a week or two after Labor Day.

The senate committee also will use the Warren report for the first phase of its new hearings.

Waste in war contract settlements will be the first inquiry for the senate group since collapse of its hearings on the warplane contracts held by Howard Hughes.

SENATORS WILL STUDY AMERICAN ZONES OVERSEAS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25—Sen. Gurney (R) S. D., said today that two senate armed services subcommittees will survey American occupation zones in Europe and the Pacific during October and November.

Gurney, chairman of the full committee, declared that the traveling senators will get "a complete understanding of conditions in the occupation zones."

Gurney said Secretary of War Royall and Secretary of the Navy Forrestal invited the committee to make the inquiries.

Legion Wants Truman To Attend Convention; Chief Sounds Warning

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—The question of whether President Truman will make a personal appearance this week at the 29th convention of the American Legion remained in abeyance today.

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, the President's military aide, called upon Legion Commander Paul H. Griffith this morning and explained that there is a possibility Mr. Truman may have to fly to the inter-American conference at Petropolis, Brazil.

Gen. Vaughn told Commander Griffith that Secretary of State Marshall wants President Truman at the Brazil conference.

Legion officials, however, still hoped the situation would become such that President Truman can come to New York. They voiced the opinion the Legion convention would be a dramatic "sounding board" for any views he might want to express on the troublesome international situation.

They are holding a "spot" open for Mr. Truman for 3 p. m. Thursday when the first session of the Legion's four-day convention gets under way at Madison Square Garden.

ASKED IF the talks with United States officials would help the British out of their crisis, he said the Americans complied with measures to steady the British position.

He was critical of reports that America was not oversympathetic with the British problem, exclaiming:

"I cannot deny too strongly suggestions that our problems are not regarded and handled with the greatest possible measure of good will and understanding by the United States."

It appeared doubtful that Sir Wilfred would report immediately to the cabinet today. He is expected to appear at another special meeting tomorrow.

More restrictive rationing of food was seen as a possible measure to deal with the situation.

COOL AIR MASS SCHEDULED TO RELIEVE STATE

Temperatures As Low As 65 Expected For Night; More Showers Due

Most welcome weather news in three weeks was in the making today as a mass of cool air pushed determinedly down from the Northwest to forcibly eject the hot, muggy blanket enveloping Ohio and the rest of the Midwest.

Weatherman Milton Davis said in Cleveland that the cooler air already had penetrated into northwestern Ohio this morning and that this undoubtedly would be the final day of 90-plus temperatures which have tortured the state almost every day since Aug. 3.

FORECASTERS in southern Ohio, however, were not very optimistic regarding a definite break in the prolonged heat wave. The Cincinnati weatherman said that he doubted whether the cold front would penetrate that far south. A high of 96 degrees was forecast for the Queen City this afternoon, compared with 92 yesterday.

Showers were predicted for northern Ohio this afternoon and evening as a prelude to the arrival of the cooler air and the downward trend of the mercury.

Davis said that if the cooler air manages to blanket the entire state, tomorrow's high temperatures will be in the low 80's. He said that the invading air mass was dry as well as cool to relieve further the situation.

Showers were falling at Detroit this morning and the sky was clouding over the Toledo area. Davis said that the mercury had halted its climb in Toledo and that the wind had shifted to northerly.

In Circleville thermometers were climbing into the mid-eighties at noon after a low of 69 Sunday night. Highest temperature Sunday was 92, Charles Carter, government weather observer reported.

Forecast for this area said "slightly cooler with some scattered showers."

DAVIS SAID that places along Lake Erie would feel the first effects of the change to cooler (Continued on Page Two)

SLAV DESERTERS SAY U. S. BEING ACCUSED BY TITO

FLORINA, Greece, Aug. 25—Yugoslav deserters say that Communist political commissars in Marshal Tito's army are preaching that the United States is determined to "take over" all of the Balkans even at the risk of provoking a third world war.

A steady stream of deserters has been trickling across the Greek border in recent months and giving themselves up to military authorities at Florina, which is within sight of the frontier. They are questioned by intelligence officers and then sent south to camps at Salonica, Firaous and in the Greek islands, where they are interned along with political refugees who have fled to Greece from Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania.

The Tito government is infuriated by the Greeks' refusal to surrender the fugitives, and has charged that Greece is keeping the "quislings" on tap so as to be able to make use of them at a later date.

POLISH AMERICANS WANT U. S. TO STOP RUSSIANS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 25—Demands that Russia's expansion in Europe be stopped highlighted first sessions of the 30th Polish American alliance convention, meeting today in Cleveland.

SECURITY PACT SCHEDULED TO INCLUDE CANADA

PETROPOLIS, Brazil, Aug. 25—A high United States source revealed today that the security pact being written at the inter-American defense conference is expected to embrace Canada.

The spokesman said that attack on Canada would call for immediate defense action by the 20 American republics at the conference under the definition of aggression backed by the United States.

Canada as a member of the British commonwealth has never attended inter-American mutual aid and defense conferences.

Progress in writing the pact was balked, meanwhile, by Argentine insistence on confining the treaty definition of aggression to armed attacks from without the western hemisphere.

The United States maintains that there should be no differentiation between attacks from within or without the hemisphere.

HATCH URGES SESSION DUE TO GREEK TROUBLES

(Continued from Page One) the Athens government until the general assembly meeting, many experts believe that the crisis will have been passed. The United States then might find itself in control of the situation.

HOWEVER, some think it possible that every effort will be made by the satellites, under Moscow guidance, to push matters to the extent that full civil war breaks out or the Athens government is overthrown before the assembly meeting.

It is doubted that the satellites have either the power or the time to bring about this turn of events. It is also doubted that Moscow would want to be in this position, although recent events have intensified open hostility to the United States in southeastern Europe.

Loy Henderson, chief of the state department's near eastern division, said in a radio broadcast that there is a danger that some strong outside power—obviously Russia—might intervene in the Greek border fighting. If such a "serious situation" were to develop, he said, the United States would have to take "drastic action."

HATCH URGES SESSION DUE TO GREEK TROUBLES

(Continued from Page One) the Athens government until the general assembly meeting, many experts believe that the crisis will have been passed. The United States then might find itself in control of the situation.

HOWEVER, some think it possible that every effort will be made by the satellites, under Moscow guidance, to push matters to the extent that full civil war breaks out or the Athens government is overthrown before the assembly meeting.

It is doubted that the satellites have either the power or the time to bring about this turn of events. It is also doubted that Moscow would want to be in this position, although recent events have intensified open hostility to the United States in southeastern Europe.

Loy Henderson, chief of the state department's near eastern division, said in a radio broadcast that there is a danger that some strong outside power—obviously Russia—might intervene in the Greek border fighting. If such a "serious situation" were to develop, he said, the United States would have to take "drastic action."

GROVEPORT SET FOR OBSERVANCE OF CENTENNIAL

Village Celebration Will Start Sunday; Many Features Planned

The village of Groveport is planning to observe its one hundredth anniversary with a four-day celebration beginning on August 31 and continuing through September 3. An eighteen-member committee, headed by Charles F. Coon as general chairman, is in charge of plans for the centennial. Churches, fraternal orders, service groups, the board of education, and all other organizations in the community are represented on the committee and are co-operating enthusiastically.

Special entertainment has been arranged for each day. Among the high points of the program will be a golf tournament at the Groveport Golf Club at 1 p. m. and a union vesper service with Dr. J. Gordon Howard as speaker at 6:30 p. m. on Sunday; a ball game, athletic contests and cycle races with prizes on Monday afternoon and the Midwestern Hayride from WLW on Monday evening; a pet parade, contests, and variety entertainment on Tuesday; the Monroe Brothers Circus, a parade, comedy entertainment, and fireworks on Wednesday.

There will be a street carnival with round and square dancing, skill games, rides, and other concessions daily except Sunday. Foods concessions will operate daily. People may picnic on the school grounds, Wednesday, September 3, has been designated as home-coming day.

If weather permits, all programs will be presented on a stage constructed on the Groveport high school football field. Bleachers have been secured from the Ohio State University athletic department to supplement the seating facilities on the school grounds.

ACCORDING to the "History of Franklin and Pickaway Counties" published by Williams Brothers in 1880, two villages, known as Wert's Grove and Rarey's-port, grew up, centered around Adam Rarey's inn on the Columbus-Lancaster road and Jacob Wert's store and warehouse on Section 53 of the Ohio canal. Only a road and some easily understood rivalry separated them.

Mr. Wert secured the establishment of a post office in Wert's Grove. But, since Mr. Rarey's inn was a convenient stopping place for travelers, Rarey's-port became widely known. Mail received through the post office sometimes was directed to Wert's Grove and sometimes was addressed to Rarey's-port.

The desirability of having a single name for the two villages soon became apparent to the people. At a public meeting, Dr. Abel Clark proposed that the personal part of both names be dropped and that the last part of each name be retained. His suggestion was adopted and early in 1847 Wert's Grove and Rarey's-port were united and incorporated under the name Groveport. The United States postal directory indicates that this is the only town bearing that name.

Safety pins were introduced into Greece by the Dorians in 1100 B. C. They were not such a humble piece of household equipment then as they are now, however. They were made of precious metals, usually decorated with porcelain enamel, and worn as jewelry.

Women, Children Guests At Fair; Racing Opens

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 25—Women and children were admitted free today to the 93rd Ohio State fair.

The sprawling exposition, a $25,000,000 show that is billed as the finest in the state's history, continued to draw near-record crowds despite 91-degree heat. Sunday attendance soared toward the 70,000-mark as complete reports from all ticket sellers trickled in, approaching the 71,399 Sunday record of last year.

Meanwhile, Fair Manager Edwin J. Bath acted to prevent price gouging at the fair. He insisted that all concessionaires comply with their rental contracts which stipulate that all prices must be posted.

FOUR STATE and four city health inspectors were giving the midway restaurants a going over, forcing one cafe to close because of tainted meat. It was later permitted to reopen with fresh supplies.

Two prize hogs in the swine exhibit died because of the intense heat. Other animals suffered. Officials ordered large stores of ice rushed to the barns and in one case a hay drier was set up to circulate air in an exhibit.

An all-denominational church service featured Sunday's program, with the All-Ohio Boys band, the Hocking county men's chorus, the Clark county 4-H band, the Columbus spiritual choir, and the Fulton county interdenominational youth choir taking part.

JUDGING in the livestock divisions was to begin today.

WHAT OF THE COLLEGES?

THE CAMPUS crowd is getting itself ready to return to the halls of learning, and, thank heaven, in a happy care-free mood. Few will be concerned with the heavy economic problems confronting administrators in those colleges.

War's end, that increased demand for the college's academic and physical resources, has also brought about a shrinkage in large gifts. War-born government taxes have dried up such sources whether from wealthy individuals or corporations. War costs have lowered returns from existing college endowments. To meet such deficiencies most institutions have raised fees, but with a still remaining hiatus between outgo and income.

Are costs to soar to the point where only the wealthy or the relatively few brilliant scholarship candidates are to receive higher training? Or are colleges to be subsidized by government grants at the risk of academic freedom?

The giving of more gifts of modest proportions by more givers, thus broadening the base, is one way to help. Even so, such a system must be widened beyond present thinking to insure enough funds. And this would not meet the vaster monies needed for such projects as medical education and research.

The subject touches the very heart of the American way of life.

SCOTLAND CALLING

BAGPIPES are skirling and fiery crosses are blazing around the world calling the MacTavishes and the MacPhersons back to Scotland for the annual Edinburgh fair which begins the latter part of August. Small hickory-branch crosses are being sent out from Scotland to many cities in the United States, to European capitals, to Canada, Australia, South Africa, Newfoundland. They come in special airplanes, are met by clansmen, lighted on the spot and extinguished in goat's blood, as the bagpipers march around them.

It's a custom 2,000 years old whereby the Scots have been assembled for battle, for feasts, or for conclaves. In New York the other day one of the crosses was received ceremoniously at La Guardia Field by Harry Smith, president and Edward Twe, vice president of the United Scottish Clans of New York and New Jersey. Other crosses will be scattered similarly about the country.

There may be more Scotsmen living outside Scotland than in it.

But their hearts always turn lovingly to the old country. The call of the fiery crosses is a pleasant tradition in a world that has gone rather bleak on sentiment of late. We hope a lot of MacTavishes, MacPhersons and MacGillicuddies get back for a visit to the Edinburgh fair.

Boilermaker, Electric Union | World Food Shortage Tough;
Chiefs May Get AFL Posts | No Near Betterment Foreseen

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The AFL executive council, top governing body of the Federation's more than seven million members, is expected to get two new members at its forthcoming Chicago meeting.

A couple of retirements are in order and it is believed that Charles McGowan, head of the boilermakers, and Daniel W. Tracy, president of the electrical workers, will move in the vacancies.

McGowan and Tracy are long-time close friends. They have worked together well in union affairs and will add considerable strength to the AFL council, several of whose members have been in ill health and inactive for many months.

Tracy served as assistant secretary of labor under Frances Perkins, but resigned a little over a year ago and immediately was re-elected president of the electrical workers.

The latter union should have little difficulty under the Taft-Hartley law. The electrical contracting industry has been free of major strikes for some 25 years as a result of a joint union-management council set up to adjudicate differences.

ASSIGNMENT: AMERICA

By Kenneth L. Dixon

Distributed by International News Service

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 — They have buried the physical remains of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo in Mississippi.

But politically, and perhaps ideologically, Bilbo slowly shriveled and died six months ago in Washington.

By his last public utterance, before his body followed his political career, Bilbo indicated at the end that even he realized that the tide of human reaction had turned against him.

It was then that the colorful-vinegar-voiced lifetime advocate of white supremacy called to his deathbed a Negro newsman.

"I hold nothing personal against Negroes as a race," he said, adding that he believed the Negroes should have equal right to vote—even "in Mississippi."

Then he sought, in perhaps one of the most thoughtful moments of his life, to justify a stormy career highlighted by shouts of racial hatreds and pleas to "keep the Negro in his place."

Across the country today, there are countless people who will believe that he gave adequate justification for that stand by saying, "I am honestly against the social intermingling of Negroes and whites." and, whether it's apparent in your community or not, among those people there are many Negroes who—possibly different reasons—are just as honestly opposed to so-called "social intermingling."

Although disagreeing with those people, both black and white, I now seek no argument on that score. In fact, I will willingly rise to the defense of their right to publicly support that theory, if they so believe—however strongly I may disagree—as long as they speak and act within the law.

But the point is not who is wrong or who is right about racial intermingling. The point is that Bilbo perished here politically six months ago, not because of what he believed, but because of the methods by which he sought to put those beliefs into action.

There were senate investigations into his campaign practices and speeches, plus probes into his somewhat strange accumulation of gifts from war contractors whom he admittedly had aided by means of his high office in the United States government.

There were charges that Bilbo, who obviously would not have been reelected had all the Negroes in Mississippi voted, exhorted his white audiences to "use every possible means" to keep the Negroes from voting. There was little doubt about what he meant, despite his later claims that he really intended to say "lawful means". His previous record made his meaning plain—and it had its effect at the polls.

But there was more, for the majority of white people in Mississippi—whether or not they agreed with some of the Bilbo beliefs—had come to weary of the Bilbo tactics. They, too, could defeat him.

So Bilbo also was charged with accepting war contractor payoffs and using them to buy the support of opposing (but white) political machines. And there were times during the senate hearings when it was freely admitted that the payoff of defeated primary candidates was old stuff.

So there you had the charges: bribery and graft behind the scenes for whites, strong-arm stuff for Negroes. It was that simple, particularly when augmented by

Kidneys' Job of Purifying Blood Vitally Important

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NORMALLY, about one-fourth of the total blood flows through the kidney each minute. At the end of a day this hard-working organ has purified some 800 gallons of blood, filtering out and excreting the waste products of the body's complicated chemical processes.

These wastes are poisonous and if the kidney fails at its task they pile up in the blood stream to poison the whole body, sometimes fatally. Failure of the kidney action may result from some disturbance of the circulation through the kidney. It may also occur because the flow of urine is blocked or as a result of some infection of the kidney.

Cause of Blocking
The chief cause of blocking of the flow of the urine in men is enlargement of the prostate gland with resultant narrowing of the outlet from the bladder. In women, blocking may result from scar tissue formation around the neck of the bladder which, in turn, is produced by previous inflammation in the pelvic reproductive organs. In children, the obstruction or blocking of the flow of the urine is usually due to some abnormal condition present at the time of birth.

Any blocking of the flow of the urine sooner or later damages the kidney tissue because of back pressure. Furthermore, in such instances, infection is likely to occur.

Change in Circulation
Any change in the general circulation may alter the circulation through the kidney. Thus kidney circulation is lessened because of low blood pressure which may be produced by shock. The circulation through the kidney may be slowed down when there is loss of blood due to severe hemorrhage. The loss of fluid from the body which occurs in fever, vomiting or diarrhea, also affects the kidney action. Failure of the heart to keep up the circulation is another cause of altered circulation.

Use of Fluids

Instead, they rely particularly on the use of fluids and suggest that about two quarts of fluids be given by mouth and one quart by injection into a vein in each 24 hours. The mixture may be of salt solution and glucose, a sugar solution. Too much salt in the diet should not be allowed.

In addition to the giving of fluids, an effort should be made to clear up any infection present in the urinary tract and also to relieve the blocking of the urine flow if possible. In some cases, this may require operative procedures.

Nothing better illustrates the marvelous construction of the human body than the kidney's elaborate filtration plant. It is one which man has never equaled for economy and efficiency in any of his most ingenious inventions. Recently when an eminent physician succeeded in constructing the world's first artificial kidney he devised a machine not only many times larger than the kidney but one larger even than the entire human body to do the work of this one relatively small, but all-important, organ.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. D.: What can I do to improve my circulation?

Answer: To improve your circulation, you should observe the following measures: exercise moderately in the outdoors daily; get plenty of fresh air and sunshine, as well as rest and sleep; eat a well-balanced diet containing an abundance of vegetables and fruit, whole-grain cereals, and milk, with meat and eggs in moderate amounts. You should take from four to six glasses of water daily.

He looked at the small sea of luggage that seemed to billow about her, and his eyebrows rose. "You're quite sure this is all? You haven't overlooked anything? You couldn't possibly be traveling this light," he said mildly.

Gail flushed and her eyes brightened beneath the sting of that.

"I could hardly come to stay for the summer with only an overnight case," she reminded him frostily.

"Of course not—certainly not. I had forgotten that you were staying." Greg picked up the two large cases and stowed them in the station wagon while Gail waited.

It did not occur to her to help him by carrying even the smallest things. One doesn't, in the sort of households to which she had been accustomed, help the servants carry in one's luggage.

When the man had made several trips and all the bags were disposed of, he looked at her curiously and said, "Well, shall we get going?"

He swung open the door of the station wagon with an almost mocking bow, and Gail hid her dismay at sight of the broken upholstery, the springs that thrust through here and there. But she did not quite manage to hide it all, and Greg grinned to himself as he swung the door shut behind her, then walked around and crawled beneath the wheel.

The car leaped away from the platform, and Gail, unprepared for the sudden lurch, was jerked forward and flung backward with a little gasp of shock and anger.

"Sorry," said Greg in a tone that said he had enjoyed it. "Mehitable is an unpredictable lady. But then, at her age one must expect to put up with whimsies, don't you think?"

She didn't answer that, for he was sending the car over the narrow, winding clay road with a speed that seemed dizzying, though in reality, Mehitable, the station wagon, was incapable of a speed of more than 35 miles an hour, and only then over a good road. Though the clay road had looked smooth, there were holes and hidden rocks, and Gail had to cling to the door and brace herself to keep from rattling around like a dried pea in a shell. She sensed that Greg was enjoying her discomfort and so steadied her voice and spoke curtly.

"I suppose you work for my father?"

Greg considered that thoughtfully for a moment, and then he nodded. "I suppose you could call it that," he agreed politely.

Gail looked at him, puzzled. Why should he hate her so? Why should he seem to enjoy making her uncomfortable? She would report him to her father, she told herself furiously. After all, she knew the servant problem was difficult even in the great homes where she was an accustomed guest, but down here in this forsaken looking country—

PEGGY DERN

SYNOPSIS
Gail Prentice, whose parents had divorced when she was a child, knew nothing of her father, Charles, except what her gay, extravagant mother, Lissa, had told her—that he was the wealthy owner of Twin Oaks, a fine old southern estate . . . and that the inadequate income he had settled on them forced them to become what Lissa termed "professional house guests" among her many wealthy friends. Gail is surprised when, one day, Lissa asks if she would like to spend the coming summer with her father. Charles had remarried years before, and heretofore Lissa had steadfastly refused to permit Gail to visit Twin Oaks, though he and his wife had often invited her. But now, having recently met wealthy Martin Kincaid, and certain he would propose if given the right opportunity—in this instance a house party in Bermuda—Lissa convinces Gail she should accept. She hoped, too, the visit might be instrumental in obtaining an increased allowance for them.

CHAPTER THREE
THE TIRED old train seemed to be wandering out into the depressing countryside for no other purpose than to drop down and rest. It stopped for long periods at every little wayside station; now and then with startling speed—contrasted to its usual rate of progress—it scampered onto a siding and waited humbly for the more important trains to flash by. And it seemed, by the frequency with which it took to sidings, that any train other than itself was important.

It seemed to Gail that she had been traveling for days and days in the stuffy day coach, surrounded by the kind of people she had seldom encountered in her sheltered life, when at last the friendly old conductor came to her and said, smiling, "Prentice station next stop, ma'am."

"Thank you," said Gail tremulously. "Oh, thank you!"

Puzzled by the depth of her gratitude, the old man said, "Why, you're right welcome, ma'am—right welcome."

The tired baby fretted in the seat behind her as it had fretted since its worn, harassed young mother and the two older children had climbed aboard earlier in the day. Across the aisle a fat, red-faced man snored heavily; a very unattractive-looking younger man stopped ogling Gail hopefully and retired, in disgust, behind his magazine.

The train shrieked madly as though this stop were almost the last straw that had worn its patience to the vanishing point. It shuddered to a loud, protesting halt with much display of escaping steam from the engine, and Gail rose to leave it. She was thankful to see the last of the stale green plush, gritty with cinders and dust, and the long aisle along which two or three children played an obscure but absorbing game of their own.

There was no such thing as a porter, but the conductor and a tobacco-chewing young brakeman helped with her luggage. She found herself on the platform in a sea of smart, expensive bags and cases, and as the conductor flung himself back on the train he looked beyond her, waved and called loudly, "Hiya, Greg. Brought you some company."

As the train screamed its anger at being forced to go on again, Gail turned in the direction the conductor had waved, and saw an ancient, battered station wagon with a man behind the wheel. He was watching her, and his eyes did not shift even as he answered the friendly conductor's hail.

"So I see, Will—so I see," he called, as the train jerked itself together and proceeded.

For a moment Gail stood quite still, surrounded by the luggage that would have been perfectly at home on any resort platform, but that looked lonely and out of place here. Gail herself, in her smartly cut soft gray suit, a matching topcoat swinging from her shoulders, her silly little hat in her hand, the sunlight glinting on the pale gold of her hair that hung straight and gleaming to her shoulders where it broke into soft curls, was as out of place there as an orchid in a field of daisies.

The station was simply a small, ugly pillbox. A yellow sand road wound around it and disappeared into the distance. There was no sign of human habitation, nor of any living thing save herself and the man behind the wheel of the station wagon.

Anger rose in her. If he had been sent to meet her, why didn't he make some movement? And then her wide blue eyes swept once more over the ancient, mud-stained car, and she knew that he couldn't possibly have been sent to meet her. But even as the thought came into her mind the man climbed out of the station wagon, swung himself to the platform and came toward her.

He was taller than he had looked behind the wheel; his head was bare and the wind ruffled hair that was a rusty, deep dark red; his eyes, she saw, were the color of strong coffee, so dark a brown as to seem black. He was sun-bronzed until he could have matched tan with any of her Florida playmates, and he was clad in a pair of khaki pants and a matching shirt, his sleeves rolled well above his elbows, the collar open at the throat.

Gail stiffened as he approached, and her eyes turned colder. But the man seemed quite unimpressed by her elegance or her beauty. In fact, the look in his eyes was so far from admiration from the look she had been accustomed to find in the eyes of young men who looked upon her, that it startled her. It was almost as though he hated her—yet that was absurd. She'd never set eyes on him before in her life, and you can't hate—or be hated by—someone you've never seen.

"Hello, Gail," he greeted her, and his voice matched the look in his eyes. "I'm Greg Thompson. Your father asked me to meet you."

WHAT OF THE COLLEGES?

THE CAMPUS crowd is getting itself ready to return to the halls of learning, and, thank heaven, in a happy care-free mood. Few will be concerned with the heavy economic problems confronting administrators in those colleges.

War's end, that increased demand for the college's academic and physical resources, has also brought about a shrinkage in large gifts. War-born government taxes have dried up such sources whether from wealthy individuals or corporations. War costs have lowered returns from existing college endowments. To meet such deficiencies most institutions have raised fees, but with a still remaining hiatus between outgo and income.

Are costs to soar to the point where only the wealthy or the relatively few brilliant scholarship candidates are to receive higher training? Or are colleges to be subsidized by government grants at the risk of academic freedom?

The giving of more gifts of modest proportions by more givers, thus broadening the base, is one way to help. Even so, such a system must be widened beyond present thinking to insure enough funds. And this would not meet the vaster monies needed for such projects as medical education and research.

The subject touches the very heart of the American way of life.

SCOTLAND CALLING

BAGPIPES are skirling and fiery crosses are blazing around the world calling the MacTavishes and the MacPhersons back to Scotland for the annual Edinburgh fair which begins the latter part of August. Small hickory-branch crosses are being sent out from Scotland to many cities in the United States, to European capitals, to Canada, Australia, South Africa, Newfoundland. They come in special airplanes, are met by clansmen, lighted on the spot and extinguished in goat's blood, as the bagpipers march around them.

It's a custom 2,000 years old whereby the Scots have been assembled for battle, for feasts, or for conclaves. In New York the other day one of the crosses was received ceremoniously at La Guardia Field by Harry Smith, president and Edward Twe, vice president of the United Scottish Clans of New York and New Jersey. Other crosses will be scattered similarly about the country.

There may be more Scotsmen living outside Scotland than in it.

But their hearts always turn lovingly to the old country. The call of the fiery crosses is a pleasant tradition in a world that has gone rather bleak on sentiment of late. We hope a lot of MacTavishes, MacPhersons and MacGillicuddy's get back for a visit to the Edinburgh fair.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25 — They have buried the physical remains of Senator Theodore G. Bilbo in Mississippi.

But politically, and perhaps ideologically, Bilbo slowly shriveled and died six months ago in Washington.

By his last public utterance, before his body followed his political career, Bilbo indicated at the end that even he realized that the tide of human reaction had turned against him.

It was then that the colorful, vinegar-voiced lifetime advocate of white supremacy called to his deathbed a Negro newsman.

"I hold nothing personal against Negroes as a race," he said, adding that he believed the Negroes should have equal right to vote—even "in Mississippi."

Then he sought, in perhaps one of the most thoughtful moments of his life, to justify a stormy career highlighted by shouts of racial hatreds and pleas to "keep the Negro in his place."

Across the country today, there are countless people who will believe that he gave adequate justification for that stand by saying, "I am honestly against the social intermingling of Negroes and whites," and, whether it's apparent in your community or not, among those people there are many Negroes who—for possibly different reasons—are just as honestly opposed to so-called "social intermingling."

Boilermaker, Electric Union | World Food Shortage Tough;
Chiefs May Get AFL Posts | No Near Betterment Foreseen

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—The AFL executive council, top governing body of the Federation's more than seven million members, is expected to get two new members at its forthcoming Chicago meeting.

A couple of retirements are in order and it is believed that Charles McGowan, head of the boilermakers, and Daniel W. Tracy, president of the electrical workers, will move in the vacancies.

McGowan and Tracy are long-time close friends. They have worked together well in union affairs and will add considerable strength to the AFL council, several of whose members have been in ill health and inactive for many months.

Tracy served as assistant secretary of labor under Frances Perkins, but resigned a little over a year ago and immediately was re-elected president of the electrical workers.

The latter union should have little difficulty under the Taft-Hartley law. The electrical contracting industry has been free of major strikes for some 25 years as a result of a joint union-management council set up to adjudicate differences.

UNFAO says things will not get better for a long time. Fear of surpluses by food producers constitute one of UNFAO's toughest problems. Producers believe shortage of foreign exchange will reduce demand for imports; that in any case demand will shrink when rehabilitation needs have been met, or that synthetics will displace many farm products.

Therefore, they hesitate to invest heavily to develop new production for export which may not pay off. Already some producers—natural rubber, for instance—find their livelihood threatened.

According to the Bulletin, a ship built of the new plastic can carry cargo 12 times her own weight.

PRICE BATTLE—An open tug-of-war is underway between the National Association of Manufacturers and the CIO over prices. Both organizations take to the propaganda mediums and state their case—the NAM in its publication NAM News, and the CIO in its Economic Outlook.

Says NAM: "Public resistance to present prices has given the New Deal di-hards new life in their campaign to control profits and hence impose a managed economy on the United States."

"Behind-the-scenes efforts have accelerated and centered on getting at profits through control of prices despite public denials by former OPA-ites that they do not foresee a return of that price control body."

The CIO wants: "Establishment of a federal price investigation board whose job it would be by use of public pressure and exposure of profiteering, to bring to light the reasons for current high prices."

"Re-establishment of price control and rationing if this country follows the Marshall plan for Europe, and if crop failures develop because of floods in the mid-west."

The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization's report on food prospects for the next year emphasizes that scarcities reach around the globe.

UNFAO says things will not get better for a long time. Fear of surpluses by food producers constitute one of UNFAO's toughest problems. Producers believe shortage of foreign exchange will reduce demand for imports; that in any case demand will shrink when rehabilitation needs have been met, or that synthetics will displace many farm products.

Therefore, they hesitate to invest heavily to develop new production for export which may not pay off. Already some producers—natural rubber, for instance—find their livelihood threatened.

RUSSIA ON THE BUILD—While pitifully-lagging United States production of freight cars retards a dozen key industries, the Soviet Union claims that its output of railway cars now exceeds the pre-war level.

This information is contained in the current issue of the USSR Bulletin, a propaganda booklet published by the Russian embassy in Washington.

Another note on Soviet industry states that the Russians are starting to make refrigerators, motorboats, rowboats and lifeboats from a new plastic materials of exceptional lightness weighing 1/20 as much as water, 1/5 as much as cork.

According to the Bulletin, a ship built of the new plastic can carry cargo 12 times her own weight.

PRICE BATTLE—An open tug-of-war is underway between the National Association of Manufacturers and the CIO over prices. Both organizations take to the propaganda mediums and state their case—the NAM in its publication NAM News, and the CIO in its Economic Outlook.

Says NAM: "Public resistance to present prices has given the New Deal di-hards new life in their campaign to control profits and hence impose a managed economy on the United States."

"Behind-the-scenes efforts have accelerated and centered on getting at profits through control of prices despite public denials by former OPA-ites that they do not foresee a return of that price control body."

The CIO wants: "Establishment of a federal price investigation board whose job it would be by use of public pressure and exposure of profiteering, to bring to light the reasons for current high prices."

"Re-establishment of price control and rationing if this country follows the Marshall plan for Europe, and if crop failures develop because of floods in the mid-west."

For an added touch of color in making a meat loaf dish look more attractive, layer it with crushed fresh currants and orange sections, then top it off with bacon strips. It tastes delicious, too.

To prepare the poultry house for winter, it should first be cleaned, and then it and equipment should be scrubbed with a mixture of one can of household lye and 10 gallons of boiling water.

In choosing a lamp, be sure the base is tall enough to throw a good shaft for reading, writing, sewing; that the bulb is protected by a diffusing bowl; that the shade is wide enough and that the lining is near white.

PRETTY SALAD TRAY

Stuffed tomatoes add color to a salad tray

By BETTY NEWTON

Luscious, ripe tomatoes are filling almost every garden now. Tomatoes may be varied by stuffing them with well-seasoned filling, and vegetable stuffed raw tomatoes make attractive garnish for cold salad trays. An idea for the main part of the tray is "half and half" salad — a delicious combination of potato salad and meat salad. Just as good to eat as it is to look at!

Half and Half Salad

1½ lbs. ready-to-serve meat
1 onion
1 raw carrot
½ C. chopped celery
½ C. stuffed olives
1½ cts. potato salad
6 tomatoes
2 cts. cole slaw
Salad greens
Salad dressing

Grind meat, onion and carrot. Mix together and add celery and crumbs and seasonings. Beat egg, olives, and enough dressing to moisten well. Grease and line ring mold with waxed paper. Pack meat mixture in half the mold and fill the other half with potato salad. Chill a few hours and unmold on a large tray. Arrange slaw stuffed tomatoes on lettuce around the ring and fill center of ring with additional slaw. Garnish with cucumber slices, green pepper strips, radish roses, pickles or olives.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes

4 tomatoes
1 small can tuna fish
1 Tbsp. minced onion
2 Tbsp. minced parsley
½ C. chopped celery
1 C. soft bread crumbs
¼ tsp. salt
1 egg
¼ C. milk

Cut tops from tomatoes and scoop out centers. Flake fish, add crumbs and seasonings. Beat egg, add milk and add to mixture. Fill tomatoes loosely and bake at 375 degrees for about 30 minutes.

ASHVILLE REDS COP TWO GAMES IN SCO LOOP

League Leaders Jump On Jeffersonville Hurlers
For 31 Hits

Ashville Reds clinched the South Central Ohio Baseball league title in the eyes of many fans Sunday when they blasted out two overwhelming victories at Jeffersonville.

The Reds copied the first half of a twin bill by an 11-5 score and took the second game 17-6.

Ashville sluggers pounded out 31 hits for a total of 62 bases. The Reds had 15 extra base hits, including four home runs, five triples and six doubles.

"SNAP" ANKROM led the first game assault with two homers, a triple and double in five times up. He was slowed down in the second game but Manager Carl Gulick had three singles and a double in five times up in this one. J. Gregg hit a double and triple in two official times up and scored four runs.

Other sluggers in the first game were Wally Noon with a triple and Harold Gulick with a triple and homer. In the second game Harold Gulick hit a double and triple; Leonard Hornsby two doubles; Bob Tracey a homer.

Mark Wylie pitched the first game and allowed eight hits. He blanked the host team until the fifth when three runs came in. Two were added in the sixth by Jeffersonville. Ashville's biggest inning was the sixth when four runs scored.

IN THE SEVEN inning second game the Reds blasted out 16 hits while Jeffersonville was getting 13. Hornsby started and gave up seven hits in two innings. Russ Gregg went the rest of the way, allowing six hits.

Ashville scored once in the first frame as did Jeffersonville. The Reds got two in the second, Jeffersonville three. Ashville scored two in the third, Jeffersonville 1. The host team was blanked the rest of the way while Ashville scored four runs in each of the last three innings.

Ashville's double win over Jeffersonville virtually clinched the Reds' selection for the three games series with Reynoldsburg of the Heart of Ohio league. Carrying a two-game margin over second place Lancaster and with only one game for the Reds and two for the Glassmen before the September 2 deadline, the nearest approach for Lancaster would be one-half game. Plans for the series, time and place, will be announced within a few days.

LANCASTER kept pace with the Reds Sunday by winning two games from Greenfield. The Glassmen took the first contest 9-4 with Paul "Bucky" Walters the winning pitcher. Don Poling pitched another no-hitter in the second contest, blanking the visitors 3-0.

In the only other game played Washington won 7-3 from Jamestown.

ASSAULT LAME; RACE WITH ARMED POSTPONED

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—The cancellation of the $100,000 Assault-Armed match race scheduled for Washington Park next Saturday gave rise to meager prospects today that the ambitious project may be held within a month.

The richest two-horse argument in history was cancelled yesterday when Assault pulled up lame after a workout at a mile and one-eighth, and Max Hirsch, trainer of the King ranch four-year-old, said it may be a month before his horse will be ready.

RICHARDS OUT OF SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT PLAY

Richards Implement softball players were back home Monday while final games of the state softball tournament were being played.

Circleville's district champions dropped out of the running Saturday at Springfield when they lost their second game. The loss was of the heart-breaker variety.

Richards outhit a Canton team 5-3 but lost the game 3-2. All the Canton runs were unearned. Todd McKinney, besides being stingy with hits, fanned 14 of the Canton players.

Manager "Snap" Ankrom hit a homer for Richards.

Lima and Toledo are the co-favorites to win the state tournament.

The two entries remained the only undefeated teams in the tourney as the squads squared off for the fourth day's games with a total of six teams still in the running.

Four teams with one loss each which face a do-or-die fight in every tilt to retain a chance for the title are Ashland, Cambridge Columbus 740 AC and Youngstown.

Either Lima or Toledo will have its spotless record marred by the end of tonight's round because they are scheduled to meet each other in the feature game at 8 p. m.

RED BIRDS DROP DOUBLE BILL TO MINNEAPOLIS

The American Association pennant chase swung into the home stretch today with the Kansas City Blues sporting an eight-and-a-half game lead.

The Blues dropped a 4-3 tilt Sunday to the Indianapolis Indians in a game called at the end of the fifth by a driving rain. However, second-place Louisville dropped a double bill to third-running Milwaukee, 7-4 and 5-3, to enable the Blues to gain a half-game anyway.

Indianapolis took over a tie for fourth with Columbus by edging the Blues, however, as Columbus dropped both ends of a twin bill to Minneapolis, 4-2 and 8-4.

Seventh-place St. Paul and cellar-dwelling Toledo split a pair,

MONTANA MAN TAKES HOME TOP SHOOTING PRIZE

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 25—The Grand American trapshooting championship — most coveted prize of the nation's scattergun artists—was taken to Gardner, Mont., today by 41-year-old Hugh Crossen.

Crossen, a rancher who also operates a sporting goods store and a tavern, broke 99 of 100 targets on the final day to beat out a record-breaking field of 1,786 aspirants. The previous entry record was 1,478 last year.

Crossen won some $5,000 in cash, plus a big chest of silver, for the first clear-cut win since 1940. In other years shoot-offs were necessary to settle ties.

When the Grand American meet broke up Saturday, the shooters had used up one million, 400 thousand 12-gauge shotgun shells over the quarter-mile-long firing line.

In the '47 grand's 200-target 16-yard race, 14 shooters broke their entire string of 200 targets. A total of 88 perfect 100's were scored.

ASSAULT LAME; RACE WITH ARMED POSTPONED

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—The cancellation of the $100,000 Assault-Armed match race scheduled for Washington Park next Saturday gave rise to meager prospects today that the ambitious project may be held within a month.

The richest two-horse argument in history was cancelled yesterday when Assault pulled up lame after a workout at a mile and one-eighth, and Max Hirsch, trainer of the King ranch four-year-old, said it may be a month before his horse will be ready.

RICHARDS OUT OF SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT PLAY

Richards Implement softball players were back home Monday while final games of the state softball tournament were being played.

Circleville's district champions dropped out of the running Saturday at Springfield when they lost their second game. The loss was of the heart-breaker variety.

Richards outthit a Canton team 5-3 but lost the game 3-2. All the Canton runs were unearned. Todd McKinney, besides being stingy with hits, fanned 14 of the Canton players.

Manager "Snap" Ankrom hit a homer for Richards. Lima and Toledo are the co-favorites to win the state tournament.

The two entries remained the only undefeated teams in the tourney as the squads squared off for the fourth day's games with a total of six teams still in the running.

Four teams with one loss each which face a do-or-die fight in every tilt to retain a chance for the title are Ashland, Cambridge Columbus 740 AC and Youngstown.

Either Lima or Toledo will have its spotless record marred by the end of tonight's round because they are scheduled to meet each other in the feature game at 8 p. m.

RED BIRDS DROP DOUBLE BILL TO MINNEAPOLIS

The American Association pennant chase swung into the home stretch today with the Kansas City Blues sporting an eight-and-a-half game lead.

The Blues dropped a 4-3 tilt Sunday to the Indianapolis Indians in a game called at the end of the fifth by a driving rain. However, second-place Louisville dropped a double bill to third-running Milwaukee, 7-4 and 5-3, to enable the Blues to gain a half-game anyway.

Indianapolis took over a tie for fourth with Columbus by edging the Blues, however, as Columbus dropped both ends of a twin bill to Minneapolis, 4-2 and 8-4.

Seventh-place St. Paul and cellar-dwelling Toledo split a pair,

MONTANA MAN TAKES HOME TOP SHOOTING PRIZE

VANDALIA, O., Aug. 25—The Grand American trapshooting championship — most coveted prize of the nation's scattergun artists—was taken to Gardner, Mont., today by 41-year-old Hugh Crossen.

Crossen, a rancher who also operates a sporting goods store and a tavern, broke 99 of 100 targets on the final day to beat out a record-breaking field of 1,786 aspirants. The previous entry record was 1,478 last year.

Crossen won some $5,000 in cash, plus a big chest of silver, for the first clear-cut win since 1940. In other years shoot-offs were necessary to settle ties.

When the Grand American meet broke up Saturday, the shooters had used up one million, 400 thousand 12-gauge shotgun shells over the quarter-mile-long firing line.

In the '47 grand's 200-target 16-yard race, 14 shooters broke their entire string of 200 targets. A total of 88 perfect 100's were scored.

OLNEY LOSES IN FINALS OF GOLF TOURNAMENT PLAY

Don Olney, Pickaway Country Club caddy, was runnerup in the junior division of the Central Ohio caddy tournament at Twin Rivers golf course in Columbus.

Don, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Olney, 411 South Washington street, lost in the finals Saturday to Jim Kreji, Columbus Wyandot club.

Joe Blanton, pro at the Pickaway club, said Monday caddies entered from here did well in the tournament since it was the first time they had ever competed in the event.

MAN-MADE RAIN BRINGS RELIEF TO CHICAGOANS

Plane Sows Dry Ice Among Clouds Causing Showers That Cool Air

CHICAGO, Aug. 25—A Chicago Herald-American plane was credited today with bringing cooling relief to a sweltering metropolis by sowing dry ice in the clouds to produce man-made rain.

It was the first time in history that such man-made respite from the heat wave has been accomplished in a major metropolis.

Gordon Dunn, federal weather forecaster who was in charge of the weather station at the Chicago municipal airport at the time of the sowing operation yesterday, declared:

"I personally watched the operation from my tower from 2:30 p. m. to 3 p. m. and saw rain develop. It was the heaviest rain noted before 6:30 p. m.

"The Herald-American plane very definitely accelerated the building up of cloud precipitation by sowing dry ice crystals. The clouds otherwise would have blown out over Lake Michigan before precipitation could have taken place."

BEFORE yesterday's cooling rain, Chicago had sweltered for more than a week in a heat wave that kept temperatures in the middle and high nineties.

The temperature was at its peak, around 100 degrees, when the newspaper's plane took off. Within two hours, the temperature dropped to 92 degrees all over Chicago, and in the particular areas where the man-made rain fell, the thermometer skidded to 82 degrees.

Earlier, a natural rain fell on the south side but brought no relief.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Plant Bulbs Now for Orchid Iris

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

ORCHID culture is not to be attempted by the average home gardener. It requires the skilled hand of the specialist. But any home garden can have the gorgeous orchid-like blooms of bulbous iris. They grow, like tulips, from fall-planted bulbs. The bulbs can be planted now or in early September.

The reason for planting bulbous iris at this time is that they begin growth at once. The foliage is slender and looks like heavy grass. It grows to be about a foot high.

The bulbs should be planted four inches deep, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Later mulch the bulbs well, especially if your winter weather is below zero in temperature.

The most popular bulbous iris for garden use are Reticulata, Dutch, Spanish and English. The flowers of each of these varieties are exquisitely graceful in form and color. They are often seen in florist shops for cut flower purposes. Reticulata, illustrated, is the smallest type and the earliest to bloom. It flowers in March, at the same time as the crocus and snow-drops. The flowers are like miniature Spanish irises.

The Dutch, Spanish and English bulbous irises belong in the Xiphium group. The Dutch are the first to bloom. Some two weeks later the Spanish variety come into flower. They are followed still later by the English variety. The English variety are very effective when used in the hardy border. When potted they make very satisfactory flowering house plants.

Bulbous irises find a light, sandy soil to their liking, although they will grow well in any moderately fertile soil. Their one prime requirement is good drainage. They also enjoy full sun.

BRANCA FOLDS BUT DODGERS BEAT PIRATES

Giants Whack Five Homers In Twin Bill With Chicago To Set New Record

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—If the Brooklyn Dodgers win the National League pennant there is going to be considerable doubt as to whether Ralph Branca, their mound ace, will be effective against the New York Yankees.

Although Branca has won 18 games, only one less than the fabulous Ewell Blackwell, he hasn't finished a game since Aug. 8. He will have to develop more stamina to be a world series winner, or even to become the 20-game winner that every pennant-winning club is supposed to boast.

Yesterday it was the same old story as Branca practically duplicated his recent effort against the Cardinals. After holding Pittsburgh to two singles in seven innings, he blew up in the eighth and fireman Hugh Casey had to slide down the pole to save the game, 3 to 1.

The St. Louis Cardinals kept six games behind the Dodgers by downing Boston 9 to 5 after spotting the Braves to four unearned runs in the first inning. Little Murry Dickson weathered the first-inning storm and helped win his own game with two hits.

Plant Bulbs Now for Orchid Iris

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed by Central Press Association

ORCHID culture is not to be attempted by the average home gardener. It requires the skilled hand of the specialist. But any home garden can have the gorgeous orchid-like blooms of bulbous iris. They grow, like tulips, from fall-planted bulbs. The bulbs can be planted now or in early September.

The reason for planting bulbous iris at this time is that they begin growth at once. The foliage is slender and looks like heavy grass. It grows to be about a foot high.

The bulbs should be planted four inches deep, as shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. Later mulch the bulbs well, especially if your winter weather is below zero in temperature.

The most popular bulbous iris for garden use are Reticulata, Dutch, Spanish and English. The flowers of each of these varieties are exquisitely graceful in form and color. They are often seen in florist shops for cut flower purposes. Reticulata, illustrated, is the smallest type and the earliest to bloom. It flowers in March, at the same time as the crocus and snowdrops. The flowers are like miniature Spanish irises.

The Dutch, Spanish and English bulbous irises belong in the Xiphium group. The Dutch are the first to bloom. Some two weeks later the Spanish variety come into flower. They are followed still later by the English variety. The English variety are very effective when used in the hardy border. When potted they make very satisfactory flowering house plants.

Bulbous irises find a light, sandy soil to their liking, although they will grow well in any moderately fertile soil. Their one prime requirement is good drainage. They also enjoy full sun.

Bass Rock is a rocky islet in the Firth of Forth off the coast of Scotland. It rises precipitously 320 feet above the sea and is about one mile in circumference. The principal event in its history was the siege sustained by 24 of James II's supporters against the forces of William III during 1691-94, which ended in an honorable capitulation.

BRANCA FOLDS BUT DODGERS BEAT PIRATES

Giants Whack Five Homers In Twin Bill With Chicago To Set New Record

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—If the Brooklyn Dodgers win the National League pennant there is going to be considerable doubt as to whether Ralph Branca, their mound ace, will be effective against the New York Yankees.

Although Branca has won 18 games, only one less than the fabulous Ewell Blackwell, he hasn't finished a game since Aug. 8. He will have to develop more stamina to be a world series winner, or even to become the 20-game winner that every pennant-winning club is supposed to boast.

Yesterday it was the same old story as Branca practically duplicated his recent effort against the Cardinals. After holding Pittsburgh to two singles in seven innings, he blew up in the eighth and fireman Hugh Casey had to slide down the pole to save the game, 3 to 1.

The St. Louis Cardinals kept six games behind the Dodgers by downing Boston 9 to 5 after spotting the Braves to four unearned runs in the first inning. Little Murry Dickson weathered the first-inning storm and helped win his own game with two hits.

NEW YORK'S GIANTS

apparently destined to set a home run mark that will stand for all time to come, whacked five circuit clouts in a twin bill with Chicago to set a new National League seasonal club record of 173. The old mark of 171 was set by the Cubs of 1930.

The Giants are a cinch to pass the major league record of 182 homers in one season, set by the New York Yankees of 1936. If they maintain their dizzy pace of the first 119 games, they will wind up the campaign with the staggering total of 223 homers.

Furthermore Johnny Mize, New York's tomato-faced first baseman who collected his 40th circuit clout yesterday, is one game ahead of Babe Ruth's schedule in 1937 when the Bambino walloped 60 homers.

The Giants made good use of two homers in the opener with Chicago in helping Larry Jansen win a 4 to 0 duel from Hank Borowy for his 15th triumph. It was Borowy's ninth straight defeat.

In the nightcap, however, all three New York homers off Hooks Wye came with the bases empty and the Cubs won 8 to 3 thanks to a fifth-inning, five-run

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

NOT NECESSARILY SO

"WHEN THE opener bids a new suit at the level of two on his second turn, after his partner has made a one-over one call of another suit, he is showing some strength above the minimum indicated by his first call." With the finest players in actual competition, this is not necessarily so. It is especially not necessarily so if the new suit he bids is the one ranking immediately below the one with which he opened. In fact, such a rebid may be considered sometimes as a mild warning that the high card strength may be rather sketchy and the hand justified opening at all solely because of distributional values to offset a lack of full honor strength.

Let's take a look at two holdings that may be held by a player in the second hand position after his right-hand opponent had passed:

1. ♠ 9 7 6
♥ None
♦ K Q J 9 8
♣ K Q 9 8 6
2. ♠ 9 7 6
♥ J 7
♦ A K 10 7
♣ Q J 8 7

Neither of these hands would fit the literal honor trick requirements of most good bridge teaching. But in real aggressive play among good players, both would be opened by practically all stern competitors in third hand position, after two passes, and likewise by a good percentage of them in second position after a pass by one opponent had given a slight indication of the likelihood that your side had some balance of power, and some of them would bid either as dealer, regardless of vulnerability.

According to some theorists a rebid of 2-Clubs, after the partner responded with 1-Spade to the opening 1-Diamond, would indicate surplus values in high cards above minimum. These people would like to have you bid 1-No Trump on Hand No. 2 to deny extra strength; they feel that a rebid of 2-Clubs would show some extra. We have always contended that this is illogical, especially since the rebid might have been on a hand like No. 1 -- perhaps one slightly weaker even, with possibly the club J in place of the Q. There are many points of value in favor of the 2-Clubs rebid on No. 2 instead of 1-No Trump. First is its merit in locating the side stoppers and locating the partner not to go on with No Trumps unless he can plug up the heart suit. Second is the chance that it may disclose clubs as the best declaration for the pair. Third, it gives the partner a cheap chance to rebid spades or to show preference between the minors if he himself has a minimum and favors diamonds. After such a rebid, the partner should not take the bit in his teeth and hop away up in any declaration unless his hand justifies doing so opposite a holding like either of these.

Bob Garred, CBS newscaster, tells this as his favorite story of the Marine landings in Japan, Aug. 30, 1945. A leatherneck of Bob's friend was in charge of one of the landing craft. The Marines checked their weapons carefully as their boat approached the Tokyo Bay shoreline. Would the Japanese be fired? Had they been told the war was over? The Marines remembered other landings. It was one of the war's strangest moments. Then, suddenly, one of the 'leathernecks' began to laugh. He pointed to the shore. There was a crude sign fixed against a small hillside. It read: "Welcom, U. S. Marines, to Japan." It was signed: "U. S. Navy Underwater Demolition Teams."

Henry J. Taylor is a black-haired, frank-eyed, wide-smiled man, originally from Chicago, Ill., who quietly wrote four best selling books, "Germany's Economy of Coercion," "Men in Motion," "Time Runs Out" and "Men and Power," and then, about two years ago, burst out on the airwaves on the MBS "Your Land and Mine" program, on which he vividly presents his views on the American way of life. He's currently broadcasting his series from the capitals of Europe.

Bob Garred, CBS newscaster, tells this as his favorite story of the Marine landings in Japan, Aug. 30, 1945. A leatherneck of Bob's friend was in charge of one of the landing craft. The Marines checked their weapons carefully as their boat approached the Tokyo Bay shoreline. Would the Japanese fire? Had they been told the war was over? The Marines remembered other landings. It was one of the war's strangest moments. Then, suddenly, one of the 'leathernecks' began to laugh. He pointed to the shore. There was a crude sign fixed against a small hillside. It read: "Welcome, U. S. Marines, to Japan." It was signed: "U. S. Navy Underwater Demolition Teams."

Bobby Ellis, who has just acquired the role of "Alexander Burnstead" on the Sunday CBS "Blondie" show, has been in radio since he was five. The son of Anna and the late attorney Nathan Ellis, Bobby has an elder sister and a string of maternal antecedents who are and were Welsh singers of note; even sang command performances before the Queen of England. Nearing 13 years of age, eight of them spent in radio, Bobby has been in Hollywood since last September.

Meredith Willson, star of CBS "Showroom" program, probably is one of the keenest students of music in radio. He began studying the flute at nine years of age and was playing with a small dance band at the age of twelve!

Paul Whiteman, the ABC disk jockey, was asked by an inquiring reporter if there was anything worse than a man who knows it all. "Yes," said Paul. "A woman who tells all."

Wheat Insurance Not Available To Pickaway Farmers Next Year

AREA WILL NOT PARTICIPATE IN FEDERAL PLAN

No New Contracts Covering Grain To Be Written In This Section

Pickaway county wheat producers will not be eligible for new wheat insurance written to cover the 1948 wheat crop or any subsequent year, according to a statement by Edgar Hempy, acting state director for the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation received at the Circleville AAA office.

The only wheat insurance Pickaway county will have for 1948 will be that provided under existing three-year contracts.

Change in legislation necessitated wheat insurance reduction, Hempy said, stating that only 200 counties in the nation will be given wheat insurance for 1948.

Franklin, Greene, Highland, Mercer, Preble, Putnam, Seneca, Stark, Tuscarawas, and Williams are the only counties selected in Ohio.

THESE TEN Ohio counties will help carry on an experiment in wheat insurance for the nation. Future development of crop insurance depends partly on the success of the program in the 200 counties.

Hempy emphasized that the change in legislation does not affect the obligation of the Corporation or any insured farmer for the 1947 crop year. However, contracts written to cover a wheat crop in 1948 or any subsequent year in a county where insurance will be discontinued are terminated by the legislation, and insured producers will be notified by the Corporation in the near future.

Pickaway county was one of those dropped.

According to Hempy, the majority of the 1948 wheat insurance will be provided under existing three-year contracts.
